

Don't Let Politics Stop the Dakota Access Pipeline

“Investing in our infrastructure is something that members of both political parties have always supported . . . There is no reason why the world’s best infrastructure should lie beyond our borders. This is America . . . All we need is the political will.”

PRESIDENT BARACK OBAMA
October 11, 2010

In an unprecedented move, three members of President Obama’s own administration just said “No” to improving our nation’s energy infrastructure.

The Department of Justice, Department of the Interior and the Department of the Army announced this month they will “reconsider” approval for part of the Dakota Access Pipeline — a $3.78 billion infrastructure project that is already more than halfway built.

Dakota Access has already received federal and state approvals — after a two-year permitting process — that were recently upheld by a federal judge.

Tell the Obama Administration: America needs infrastructure investment. Allow the Dakota Access Pipeline to continue construction.
